Backlog of cases in courts

388. SHRI JANARDHANA POOJARY: Will the Minister of LAW AND JUSTICE be pleased to state:

(a) whether there is a huge backlog of court cases;

(b) whether there is demand for establishing about 5,000 more courts to deal with the pending cases; and

(c) if so, the details thereof and Government's response thereto?

THE MINISTER OF LAW AND JUSTICE (SHRI H.R. BHARDWAJ): (a) A total of 2,89,86,205 cases are reported pending in the District & Subordinate Courts and the various High Courts as on 30.9.2007 out of which 37,00,223 cases are pending in the various High Courts. In the Supreme Court 46,926 cases are reported pending as on 31.12.2007.

(b) and (c) With a view to making a substantial impact in reduction of arrears of pending cases in courts, the Government has introduced 'The Gram Nyayalays Bill, 2007' for establishing 5067 Gram Nyayalayas. This Bill will enable setting up of more trial courts in the country at the intermediate Pachayat level. These courts would provide justice in relatively ordinary civil and criminal cases to the rural population. The procedure to be followed by these courts has also been kept simple and flexible so that cases can be heard and disposed of within 90 days' period. It is also envisaged that these courts would be mobile and would hear the parties in their respective villages to achieve the goal of providing justice to the people at their doorsteps.
